Asia Studies Visiting Fellowship

The East-West Center in Washington (EWCW) provides three-month fellowships for individuals from the Indo-Pacific region, including the United States, to undertake research on topics of relevance to contemporary US-Indo-Pacific relations.

During their residency, selected fellows will be able to engage with officials at various departments and agencies, experts at the EWCW, as well as other DC think tanks and universities. They will also be able to attend EWCW seminars and events around Washington, DC. Selected fellows will complete two written works for publication by the East-West Center and present their research at a public seminar to government officials, professors, students, and others. Below is a list of Mongolian and Mongolia expert fellows.

Young Professionals Program

EWCW offers a chance each semester for undergraduate and graduate students, as well as recent graduates, to gain first-hand training experience at a US-Indo-Pacific research and education organization in Washington, DC. Below is a list of recent Mongolian EWCW Young Professionals.

The East-West Center promotes better relations and understanding among the people and nations of the United States, Asia, and the Pacific through cooperative study research and dialogue. Established by the US Congress in 1960, the Center serves as a resource for information and analysis on critical issues of common concern, bringing people together to exchange views, build expertise, and develop policy options. The East-West Center in Washington, a program of the East-West Center, advances US-Indo-Pacific relations by creating innovative content, publications, exchanges, and outreach activities.
